In a Bowl, They Stay Gold

When you think of goldfish, you probably think of the inch long ones who live in home aquariums. Goldfish are popular pets. Because they are peaceful and hardy and easy to raise. When choosing between cats, dogs and goldfish, remember that the latter can be the longest lived 30-40 years! Goldfish do quite good in a little fishbowl but they're actually the domesticated cousins of carp which live wild in most of the rivers of the world. In a natural state goldfish is olive or dark brown in color, if you take them on back to the wild goldfish lose their bright colors, and becomes drab in a few generations. Domestic goldfish are pretty and watching them swim is suppose to lower blood pressure. I guess there perfect except for one thing—have you ever tried to have a relationship with a fish.
